

“Let’s Live For Today” – Vicki St. Amand (original by Amy Grant with Carole King)

January, February, March,
The days are marching forward
April, May, June and July
They fly like a hummingbird
August, September, October
The year is almost over
November, December arrive
Another year, come and gone.

Time is illusion
Time is a curse
Huntington’s all these things and worse
But our time is now, ohhhhh
Yes, our time is now, ohhhhh
Let’s live for today as tomorrow might never come

I need to speak up, get my voice back
I still have feelings, yes I do
We have lots of memories together
There’s still time to make more

I won't let my home now define me
I'm not finished living yet
I know what I need to be happy
And healthy again.

Time is illusion
Time is a curse
Huntington's all these things and worse
But our time is now, ohhhhh
Yes, our time is now, ohhhhh
Let's live for today as tomorrow might never come.

Time is illusion
Time is a curse
Huntington's all these things and worse
But our time is now, ohhhhh
Yes, our time is now, ohhhhh
Let's live for today as tomorrow might never come.

I wanna live for today as tomorrow might never come.
